Photos of the Walpole N.H. print taken by its discoverer, Peter D. Hasson What is it?
This impression was found in 1965 in a stratum of Devonian rocks near the Connecticut at Walpole, New Hampshire (the Devonian period ended from 400 — 350 million years ago.) although only one impression was found the unusual symmetry does not convincingly suggest a solitary entity or feature due to simple erosion. If the formation represents a footprint it is of no known animal,
